PORTERVILLE, Jan. 24 — Livestock committee of the Porterville fair organized Monday night for 1963, with Chet Gilbert again heading up the division.

Richard Owen will be in charge of the beef section; Guido Lombardi, dairy animals and horses; W. E. Moench, swine; Gordon Todd, Sr., sheep; George Carter, fat stock sale manager; and Dr. C. S. Crane, official veterinarian.

Arrangements have been completed for eight awards to be made during the 1963 fair in clean stall competition, two each going to the four major livestock categories — beef cattle, swine, sheep and dairy cattle.

A number of ideas were discussed for better handling of livestock at the fair, also for revision of the premium book; these matters will be presented for action at the next

PROMOTION GROUP IS ORGANIZED

TREE HOUSE, Jan. 24 — A committee of five, headed by Wes Kutzner, was set up Monday evening to prepare a set of by-laws and policy statement for a new association that will promote the recreational and business opportunities in the Tule River valleys and the High Sierra.

Serving on the committee with Kutzner are: Tom Short, Fred Strauss, Claud Rouch, and Woody Hannam. This group will meet the evening of January 31 in Strauss' Porterville office to work out details of association formation.

Set for February 8, 7:30 p.m., in the Springville Memorial building is a general, public meeting to officially organize the promotional association; all interested persons are invited.

Idea of the new organization is to plan and conduct a continuous program of publicity and promotion covering the entire Tule river and High Sierra country; publicity programs of individual business enterprises would be tied in.

Attending the Monday meeting, in addition to those named on the CAMP NELSON, Jan. 24 — The first 10 units of a motel development at Camp Nelson will be bid on February 4, and construction will start as soon as possible, according to Wy Grier, owner of the resort.

Located back of the hotel that was enlarged and remodeled last year, the motel is planned for an eventual 50 units. Architecture will be of a rustic nature to fit in with the hotel and the surroundings, Grier states.

BIG LEAGUE BASEBALL APRIL 3 IN PORTERVILLE ANGELS VS. HOUSTON COLTS

PORTERVILLE, Jan. 24 — Porterville fans will see big league baseball at Municipal field the afternoon of April 3, when the Los Angeles Angels meet the Houston Colts in a spring training game.

Appearance of the two American league clubs is being sponsored by the Porterville Breakfast Lions, with Marty Martin, a past president of the Lions, signing the game contract at the Los Angeles office of the Angels several days ago.

With Martin for the final negotiation meeting was Loren Schmid and Bill Rodgers, the latter unofficially representing the city of Porterville.

Signing for the Angels was Fred Haney, general manager; completing the arrangements was Marvin Milkes, assistant to Haney.

The Angels and Colts will play a series of spring training games on the west coast, with the Porterville game being the next to last tuneup for the Angels prior to their weekend "City Championship" series with the Los Angeles Dodgers in Chavez ravine.

About 100 people will be in the traveling parties of the two teams. They will arrive in Porterville to spend the night of April 2, leaving San Jose following an afternoon game there. From Porterville they go to Bakersfield for a

Editorial Comment

THE NAME AND FAME OF TULE

The name and fame of the Tule river valleys, and the Sierra beyond, may well be spread throughout the world — or at least throughout California — by efforts of an organization now in the process of formation, but unnamed to date.

About 25 persons who are directly interested in recreation and business development in the Tule river area have named a committee to write up by-laws prior to a permanent organization meeting in Springville February 8, when everyone from everywhere is invited to attend and get in on the ground floor.

General purpose of this new organization — maybe it will be the Sierra Riviera association — is to develop advertising and promotional programs for the Tule river valleys and the high Sierra, plus the coordination of individual promotional efforts that may be made by various business enterprises in the area.

All this is strictly a commercial venture — it is not a chamber of commerce activity — it is being done primarily with the profit motive in mind, and certainly that's all to the good.

Actually, there is a field for, and a need, for just such an organization and such a program. There are tremendous undeveloped recreation and business potentials along the Tule; there are actually millions of people within a one-day drive of this area who are looking for just what the area has to offer; the problem is to let folks know what we really have.

Persons interested in the new association are not thinking in terms of a great, single blast of publicity, but rather in terms of continuing advertising and promotion that is designed to bring sound development to the area, and continuing tourist travel.

Anyone who has an interest in a healthy economy in south-eastern Tulare county should keep an eye on this new move, for there are excellent products to be sold in the valleys of the Tule.

Successful sales mean more investment dollars and more tourist dollars kicking around, and these dollars have a way of bouncing several times once they get into the community.

And bouncing dollars of this kind do nothing but create prosperity for folks hereabouts.

MUCH HAS been written about the tough situation in the local citrus industry that has resulted from extremely cold weather, but livestock men are also having their troubles as they face a drought situation on foothill ranges that usually are green and flourishing with natural feed at this time of year. Above photo illustrates the point: A herd of cattle on a virtually barren foothill slope, eating alfalfa hay that has been dumped on the ground. In order to meet the heavy demand, hay is being imported from wherever it can be obtained, and the expense of carrying range cattle is rapidly mounting to the economic breaking point. A PRICELESS RECIPE

In a health emergency, the little slip of paper on which your physician writes his prescription is priceless. You wouldn't part with it under any circumstances.

However, once the emergency has passed, human nature being what it is, you are apt to forget how valuable the prescription really was. Maybe you even grumble a little at its out-of-pocket cost, failing to remember the doctor's professional skill, the countless hours of pharmaceutical research and many other factors that made the "recipe" possible in a health crisis.

Permit our prescription department to fill your next "recipe for health."

THE RICH MAN'S GUIDE TO THE RIVIERA, by David Dodge, has a most misleading title. Actually far more of a journal than a guide book, we have here a lively, witty account of the author's years of residence on the French Coast. The background for many of the author's delightful mysteries is here; characters appear in the round whom we thought were imaginary when reading Dodge's novels. We delight, too, in the descriptions of famous people, seen through a sardonic eye. This is a genuinely funny book, superbly written.

THE AUTOBIOGRAPHY OF UPTON SINCLAIR is a candid outpouring of the ideas, motivations and experiences of a lifelong rebel, now aged 83. In these long memoirs Upton Sinclair traces the roots of his strong beliefs, such as his stand against alcohol, his championship of the poor and underprivileged, his anti-religious feelings. He reviews his voluminous writings and describes his stormy personal life. This man is the prodigious writer of hundreds of novels, plays, diatribes and pamphlets. This is a protest of life, written at 83, telling many generations that Upton Sinclair is still among us.

A century and a half ago, Indiana, Illinois and Ohio were a part of a vast wilderness, the great American central basin. Today this center of our country has been called the buckle on the industrial belt of America. In THE HEARTLAND, Walter Havighurst gives us the history of this vigorous countryside, and in particular of its intellectual development, contrasted with today's industry and yesterday's gentle rolling farmland. From these acres came Edgar Lee Masters, Carl Sandburg, Louis Bromfield, James Whitcomb Riley, and Booth Tarkington. General Lew Wallace was sent West to police Billy the Kid, but we remember him best from Ben Hur, written while on this tour of duty. This is a fine contribution of the Regions of America series.

THE FABULOUS COUNTRY, edited by the late Charles Laughton, is a delightful anthology describing various parts of the United States which Mr. and Mrs. Laughton have known and liked. The comment on each piece by Mr. Laughton is warm and charming.

VISALIA — A new justice court building for the Visalia district will be built downtown, rather than at the county courthouse site; vote on where to build by the county board of supervisors was 3-2.

VISALIA — J. C. Penney company will build the first store in the Mac Cor Co. shopping center development at Walnut avenue and Mooney boulevard.

PIXLEY — Six hundred forty acres of cotton land west of Pixley, has sold for $324,500. Sellers were Messers and Mesdames Ashley S. Orr, of San Marino, and Edgar R. Orr, of Santa Monica; purchasers were Messers and Mesdames Roscoe E. Smith, Wesley W. Smith, and Lesley W. Smith. tract — was 567-292.

TERRA BELLA — Mrs. Peggy Hanson, of Terra Bella, has been named county chairman for the Mothers' March for the March of Dimes, January 27.

PIXLEY — Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Newsom have sold 80 acres of cotton land 2 1/2 miles west of Porterville to Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Minoletti, of Porterville, for $108,000.

Power Re-elected President Of County Chamber

VISALIA, Jan. 24 — Domer F. Power, Lindsay area rancher, has been re-elected president of the Tulare county chamber of commerce to serve a third, one-year term.

Gil Swift, Tulare business man, was re-elected vice president; and Dalton P. Verry was reappointed secretary-manager. In other action of last week chamber board meeting the board went on record as being opposed to the adoption of new regulations now being considered at the State Industrial Welfare commission hearings that might indirectly result in materially increasing vacation expenses of the traveling public, which in turn would have an adverse affect on the economy of Tulare county and that segment which serves them.

The board also received and adopted the recommendation of the County Highway committee favoring support of proposed legislation increasing highway users taxes which would be allocated for use by cities and counties on primary city streets and county roads.

May 24 was set as the date for the annual County chamber of commerce banquet meeting, which is to be held again at Giant Forest lodge in Sequoia National park.

Power announced that the following directors had received reappointment by the State chamber of commerce to serve on statewide committees. They are as follows: Dave Chamberlain, water resources; Gil Swift, highway; Walter Markham, travel and recreation; Domer F. Power, agriculture; and J. E. Wheeler, chairman of the County Industrial committee, was reappointed to the

There have been many books written about California history and in all of them it is clear that Californians have survived many hardships. This includes years of too few roads or too much government, along with years of too much weather or too little rain. This year seems likely to become another of these historical years and one which we can look back on for years to come.

However, we will survive and warm, wet winters will follow to equalize the situation — meanwhile many delightful substitutes will be taken internally and small boys can put off bathing as a civic duty.

The garden minded can still have hope because it may rain yet and, if not we have shrubs that will grow without water. In fact if you'll go away for a couple of weeks we'll design you a yard that requires less work and less water than you might think possible. It won't be a blooming beauty but it will be a practical and attractive compromise.

Among other things that shrubs do is screen out the dust, filter the smudge smoke, and add humidity to the air. With this in mind we hope you'll wander down on "E" Street north of Olive and see "what's new" in the way of a growing air purifier.

YOU'LL WASH YOUR DISHES...WITH THE SPEED OF SOUND ...in the all-electric future

The chore of doing the dishes will be a thing of the past. Ultrasonic dishwashers will "wash" mountains of dishes, utensils, pots and pans in seconds — with waves that travel faster than sound! Cleaning up after baking, family gatherings and parties will be done before you can say "Who's going to do the dishes?"

Electricity will make endless wonders possible in the future... and Edison will see to it that the power you need to enjoy the best of living will come to you at the lowest possible cost.

The electric industry, of course, continues to lead in the research to find new sources of electricity, and logically so. Electricity is our business. Already, we have produced it from a variety of sources such as solar energy, nuclear energy, the fuel cell and others.

Whatever the source of electricity, you can count on Edison to continue to bring you an abundant, dependable supply... and to keep electricity the biggest bargain in your budget.

"THE FALLOUT Shelter Program in Tulare county took a vigorous step forward this week with the posting of shelter signs", says a recent press release from the Tulare Operational area, Civil Defense and Disaster office, headed by R. A. Jakoubek, a paid employee of the county. The release further refers to "intensive study by representatives of the Army Corps of Engineers", and tells how the engineers are working to install "distinctive yellow and black reflector signs" at fallout shelters. But this vigorous program has produced only 22 shelter facilities in Tulare county, capable of accommodating 6,485 persons, which leaves some 150,000 or 160,000 persons unaccommodated. Four buildings in the Porterville area are approved fallout shelters: The state hospital, the post office, Finance & Thrift company, and Steve's Drapery. These shelters would accommodate perhaps the number of persons usually around the premise, which leaves quite a few — say 20,000 or 25,000 persons unaccommodated hereabouts. Some of those "distinctive" yellow and black reflector signs have been successfully hidden from public view, which is probably all to the good, since in case of a genuine attack alert, someone could get killed in the stampede if folks know where the four local shelters are. . . . If you think these comments are facetious, you're right. Except that this civil defense thing—the real thing — could be serious. We frankly admit we don't know the answer. Judging by Mr. Jakoubek's press release and indicated actions, he doesn't either.

WHAT WITH Governor E. G. Brown ready to toss California's first three billion dollar budget at the state legislature, and what with the governor's campaign pledge to refrain from increasing taxes, the old horns of the dilemma are sprouting fast around Sacramento, and there are all kinds of ideas about what to do to avoid the horns. Some say the state needs a lottery; others favor licensing of, and betting on greyhound racing and jai alai; there is another school of enlightened political thought involving longer horse racing seasons and night harness racing. Somewhere in the wilderness there must be a small voice crying out for reduction of state governmental costs, like tossing out Brown's silly and expensive new bureaus, but this voice just isn't heard above the thundering roar for more money for more bureaus and more commissions that can spend more money for more things that we home folks don't really want in the first place until some politician gets to telling us that if we don't get them someone else will. . . . Hale Champion, Brown's finance director, has another idea. He says the state can pick up $100 million a year for the next two years by putting folks on a pay-as-you-go tax basis. We Californians now pay our state tax on April 15 for the preceding year, and three installments can be arranged. Champion would cut out the installment plan; banks, corporations, and such, would pay their state taxes semi-annually when levied, and individuals would pay through deductions from their payroll checks. . . . We have no quarrel with a pay-as-you-go tax plan, recognizing, of course, that this is only a stop gap for ultimate tax increases, but it is this payroll deduction that leaves us cold and worried, for payroll deduction, as demonstrated by the federal government, is the easiest way to lull the folks back home into a false impression of what government costs. A little bite out of the pay check — a bite that gets bigger and bigger but is still sort of painless in a way, is the surest method to guarantee a maximum of future tax increases with a minimum of complaint. Let the people who pay taxes pay them directly to the government, then they'll realize more fully what they are paying; as for a payroll deduction for state taxes — down the drain with that idea, and don't forget to pull the chain.

BUT MAYBE it's like Glenn Edwards says: What this country really needs is a five-cent nickel.

Partnership insurance gives businesslike protection to a father-son farm

Like farsighted partners in any business, the father and son who run a modern farm can benefit greatly from Partnership Insurance. Primarily it can serve to fund a buy-sell agreement: If the father dies, cash is immediately available to the son to buy out the interest of the widow and any other heirs. Thus the son can maintain control and is able to keep the farm going as usual. The other heirs receive their rightful inheritance. Over the years, this same insurance can serve also as loan collateral or as a source of emergency funds. Ask your New York Life Agent for more information. He can tell you about Partnership Insurance suitable for virtually any size farm or ranch, to meet any partnership requirement.

Communist Threat To Democracy Is Theme Of Programs

PORTERVILLE, Jan. 24 — Under the sponsorship of the Porterville Committee for the Preservation of Freedom, two programs to alert citizens to the dangers threatening democracy will be presented in Porterville.

On Friday night, Rev. James D. Colbert will speak at 8 o'clock at the high school cafeteria, giving a report on "Cuba, Communism and the United States".

The second program will be Saturday night, also in the high school cafeteria at 8 o'clock, and will feature a film on the debate between Dr. Fred Swartz and Harry Bridges.

Officers of the local committee invite the public to attend, pointing out that admission is free.

Rev. Colbert is international director of missions and vice president of the Christian Anti-Communism Crusade, which Dr. Swartz heads. He has recently returned from a world-wide trip in which he personally observed Communist activity on many fronts.

Rev. Colbert attended Riverside college, Long Beach college, Long Beach State and then Los Angeles Baptist Theological seminary. It was while he was successfully filling the pastorate of a church that he came in contact with a former Communist party official, and be-

MARKETING AREA FOR MILK CONSOLIDATED

SACRAMENTO, Jan. 24—State Director of Agriculture Charles Paul has announced the consolidation of the Fresno and Kings-Tulare Marketing areas into one marketing area.

This action was taken following public hearings in which producers favored the consolidation as a step to more efficient administration.

This consolidation of these two marketing areas, which becomes effective February 1, does not effect minimum prices required to be paid by consumers for milk purchased in these marketing areas.

The consolidated area will be known as the Fresno Marketing area.

Milk production in 1963, nationally may hit a new record, but lower prices will result in smaller cash receipts to dairymen.

On January 18th more than 4,760,000 shares of stock were traded on the New York Stock Exchange. But prices did not change very much on the average. Individually 572 stocks rose and 509 stocks declined. There were 1,319 different issues traded.

The one clear fact about the day's transactions is that the "public" is very active in the common stock market. It is also obvious that there is considerable confusion about the outlook in general, and as to the prospects for different industries and corporations. FOR EVERY BUYER, OF COURSE, THERE MUST ALWAYS BE A SELLER.

Yet, most people seem to believe that, while our immediate business outlook is confused, the long-term prospects for well-managed, financially sound corporations in basic industries are attractive.

A constructive INVESTMENT view of common stock ownership seems justified. If one selects carefully, reappraises frequently and diversifies sensibly, common stocks may offer good prospects of rewards. There is, of course, a normal risk of loss.

The market, as measured by the Dow-Jones Industrial Average, took quite a beating last year. Since mid-October, however, encouraged investors have caused a recovery of values of about 18%.

It is a time for careful investing. It is a time tailor-made for investment in mutual funds which provide diversification, selection, management and marketability in a convenient form. The relatively heavy stock trading points up the advantages of Mutual Funds.

A recent issue of "Popular Science" magazine made these comments about America's traffic accidents: "Alcohol is the single largest factor in our highway accident situation. In fact it is equal to all the other causes combined!"

Dr. John D. Freeman's book, "Shadow Over America", points out that one in every nine drinkers in the USA will become a problem drinker or an alcoholic. When you sip your first social cocktail, to please your hostess, your boss, or your customer, no scientist, sociologist, or preacher can guarantee that YOU will not be that luckless one in nine!

There is only one sure way to avoid becoming an alcoholic. Say, "No, thanks. I don't drink."

Dr. Roy L. Smith recently made these startling statements: "So far as scientific findings are concerned, the war against alcohol has been a victorious one. Alcohol has been defined by the chemist as a poison. The economist calls it a parasite. The psychologist labels it a deceiver. The pathologist calls it a narcotic. The psychologist labels it a deceiver. embryologist knows it as a menace. In crime, the criminologist calls it an accessory after the fact."

Alcohol is the world's worst hypocrite. It pretends to be your friend, while poisoning you and robbing your wife and children of food and clothing.

Alcohol turns a loving father into a heartless brute, a devoted mother into a woman of shame, a brilliant scholar into a raving maniac.

Alcohol causes the churchman to desert the amen corner; then flings him into the gutter or prison cell with the vilest of men.

Alcohol, deceiver and destroyer, is an archangel of His Satanic Majesty the devil, whom the Bible calls Abaddon, meaning "destroyer" in Hebrew. Shun alcohol, as you would the devil himself!

AAU STRANGLE-HOLD ON AMATEUR ATHLETICS BROKEN BY MAC ARTHUR

The Amateur Athletic Union, which has held American amateur athletics in a strangle hold since time began, is on its way out. The loosening of the AAU's death grip did not happen on the field of athletic conflict, but came in the Waldorf-Astoria suite of General Douglas MacArthur in New York City.

MacArthur, relieved of Allied command because he wanted to win the Korean war, said some time ago that he would not die immediately, but would just fade away. He stopped his fade long enough to represent the New Frontier in the squabble between the controlling interests of the muscle set.

The AAU has controlled U.S. Amateur sports since 1888, and while it started out to be a good idea, things got out of hand. In recent years its rulings have been harsh, dictatorial and final. The most sensational case that the AAU ruled on in recent years involved Wes Santee, the great Kansas miler. Santee was accused of taking more than the eight dollars a day that the AAU allows an athlete to receive for expenses at an athletic contest. Santee, who at that time was knocking on the door of the four minute mile, was relieved of his amateur status and ended up in the Marines.

Some time in the dim past the AAU set eight dollars as the amount that an athletic participant needed to maintain himself while competing. This is all the AAU allows a promoter to give the athlete legally. At the time that the AAU set the expense amount it was probably enough. But times changed and the AAU did not. It was a great big gravy train on which men like Avery Brundage, Pincus Sober, and Col. Don Hull took a long luxurious ride.

AAU officials travel and live first class at all international sports meets, while the same has not been true of the U.S. teams that they represent.

Each year when the U.S. State Department sends small track and field teams on tour in foreign countries the AAU did not always send along a qualified coach. Often the coach would be some obscure fellow who had done plenty of AAU back-patting in the past.

An example of AAU arrogance was their attempt to pass a ruling whereby any athlete who even intended to some day become a professional in his or her specialty was then a professional and thus their amateur status was over then and there. Absurd old men who had grown childish in their extreme age.

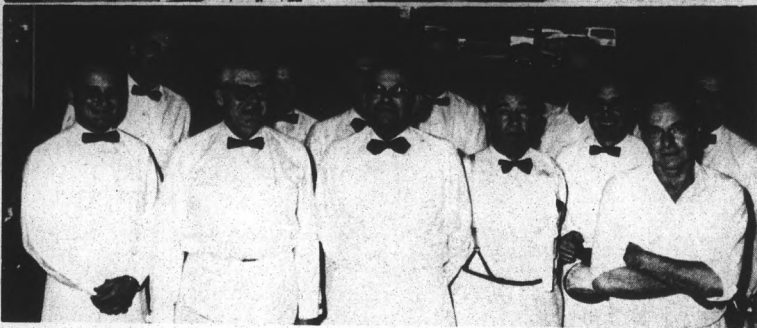

Probably the single man most responsible for the end of the AAU reign was coach Bill Bowerman of Oregon State. Bowerman, tired of having his track and field squad ruled over from afar, was instrumental in the forming of the United States Track and Field Federation which openly opposed the AAU. The AAU promptly said that any athlete that participated in a USTFF sponsored meet was suspended from amateur competition. The fat was in the fire.

The fire has raged for several years now and threatened the U.S. performance in the coming Olympic games. JFK stepped in and appointed General MacArthur to arbitrate the dispute. The results of the arbitration were the forming of a six-man board called the Olympic Eligibility board which will settle future disputes. The board will be made up of three members of the AAU and three representatives of the USTFF. Failure of the board to agree will result in a final decision by MacArthur.

The AAU is not gone. Yet. But its days are numbered and it is no longer all powerful. Amateur athletics in the U.S. will be better for it.
